CAPT. SNOW PROMOTED

Word comes from Miami that Capt. George D. Snow, one of the efficient pilots of the Pan American Line, has been ordered to the South American field, whose headquarters is Port of Spain, Trinidad. Capt. Snow will fill the position of senior pilot, his flights taking him over the established northern airplane routes of South America. The transfer to this important field is in the nature of a promotion, recognizing Capt. Snow's standing among the leading pilots in air service.

Capt. and Mrs. Snow will close or rent their attractive home in Coral Gables, and accompanied by their children George and Barbara will leave on May 4 for their new home in Trinidad, making the three-day trip by airplane. Preceding that departure the captain and his wife are enjoying a ten-day vacation with an automobile tour of the most interesting parts of Florida.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

This is to officially announce that Daylight Saving Time will go into effect the last Sunday of this month (April 30) continuing until the last Saturday in September. This is in accordance with the custom generally followed in this and other States.

IN JEWS' BEHALF

Joseph Dondis Intercedes For German Victims, With State Department

The persecution of the Jewish race in Germany, as noted in recent news despatches, excited the attention and sympathy of all local Hebrews.

Joseph Dondis, who so often takes up the cudgels in behalf of his fellow countrymen, here or elsewhere, got in immediate touch with Representative Moran, who referred the matter to the State Department.

From Pierpont Moffatt, chief of the Division of Western European Affairs, Mr. Dondis received this reply:

"I desire to acknowledge the receipt, by reference from Hon. Edward C. Moran, Jr., United States House of Representatives, of your letter of April 4, regarding reports of mistreatment of Jews in Germany, and to assure you that due note has been taken of your communication."

Chief Moffatt wrote for the Secretary of State.

Yesterday Mr. Dondis received word directly from Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, indicating that the matter would receive his official attention.

AMERICA'S DESTINY

Crisis Through Which We Are Now Passing Must Develop a Leader

Eleanor Tibbetts, who won first prize in the annual essay contest at Rockland High School, achieved that distinction with the following essay:

America, Her Destiny
Is the destiny of America hanging in the balance? Thinking only of the present situation, anyone may pessimistically answer in the affirmative. Some nations have even ventured to state that America has fallen. However, considering the dynamic nature of American spirit, the fighting heart, and the love of independence and freedom, that is characteristic of all true Americans, it is practically impossible to think of a downfall.

Truly we are now passing through a great national crisis. But a nation that originated with thirteen meagre States, and rose to the heights which America has already attained cannot be permanently halted by the natural reaction of a great war. When that great emergency arose, and the safety of the world was threatened, America made the great gesture, and sacrificed her power and money in order to make the world safe for democracy. However, the sight of wealth flowing like water dazzled the citizens, and gave them a false sense of values. They learned extravagant habits. Now comes the reaction; America must again learn the lesson of frugality.

It is war, the mad desire that forces men to advance and slaughter their own fellowmen, that is demoralizing to any nation no matter how profitable the results may seem. It was war that caused prices and wages to surge to dizzy heights that could not be maintained, heights from which they were foredoomed to fall.

The old order of things must be changed to fit new and varying conditions. But we can depend on the fact that America and her people who have always stood for independence and freedom will always continue to cling to their rights. Will not lose their identity, and will not become just a part of a great machine.

As emergencies in the past have developed leaders to rise and point out the way to prosperity, it would seem that this crisis through which we are now passing, if not corrected soon, must develop such a leader. The Revolutionary War had its Washington, the Civil War its Lincoln, now who will be the saviour for the aftermath of the World War? The situation demands a leader strong and courageous, one who dares to oppose present leaders, and blaze new trails; a man who will not be contaminated by the greed of big business or the corruption of politics, and who will love America and its institutions and be willing to work and suffer, if need be, for them, and inspire his followers to do likewise; one who can labor for the benefit of the people as a whole, not for the benefit of any favored class. Hard work must be done, hardships must be met and endured, but just as such things have been conquered in the past when the weapons of civilization were less sharp than they are today, these hardships can be overcome again.

After all the situation is not so desperate as has been assumed. There is no famine, no pestilence, no national disaster, and no revolution. There is a horde of people who are eager and willing to work, and who need only to be shown how to work, and be assured that they will receive the due advantages. The right man at the right time can properly readjust the broken down system, and allow the whole American nation to continue to progress, as in the past she has proved she can do, and roll on to an era of prosperity unimpeded for and undreamed of.

A FAMOUS STEAMBOAT WAR

Recalling Exciting Days On the Vinalhaven Line When All Had Partisan Spirit

(Written by Sidney L. Winslow)
FOREWORD

In the following story of the contest for supremacy and control of the steamboat route between Rockland and Vinalhaven, I have written my own impressions of the affair, and while, admittedly, a booster for the opposing line as represented by the Kimball Company boats—steamers Emmeline and Vinalhaven—I have endeavored to give an impartial and unbiased opinion of what happened during the enactment of this interesting episode of Vinalhaven history.

I have referred to steamers Emmeline and Vinalhaven as boats belonging to the Kimball Company. Now I or may not be, but nobody will deny the fact that she was the slowest, her time in crossing the bay ranging from two to five hours.

The Butt Of Jokers
Local newspapers and punsters seldom missed an opportunity to make a joke of the Pioneer's lack of speed, here are a few of them taken from "The Vinalhaven Echo," a newspaper published in 1888.

"Steamer Pioneer is painted white, which goes to show that white is not a fast color."

"It is reported that the Pioneer will make tri-weekly trips during the winter, which we suppose means that she will go over one week and try to Steamer North Haven, latest craft to make its advent on the island run. The picture was made on the occasion of her first arrival at North Haven when the whole town turned out to welcome her.

don't know whether there ever was a steamboat company by that name, but it was said that the above craft were owned by a man named Kimball, so they were often called the Kimball Company boats.

Somehow I feel that I am more or less of an authority concerning the "fine points" of the contest for aside from the time when I had to be at school, I can't remember of once failing to be at the steamboat pier when the boats arrived, excepting the day I undertook to learn to chew tobacco.

Still everyone is entitled to his own opinion concerning the event and below you will find mine.

Sidney L. Winslow
Vinalhaven.

How the War Began

An episode in Vinalhaven's history which, at the time of its enactment, was of extreme interest to the citizenry, was the contest during the 90s for control of the steamboat route between Vinalhaven and Rockland.

For a good start on this story it is necessary that we should go back a little further than the 90s, to the 70s for it was at that time the first steamboat war for the above route was waged. In this first contest the Fox Island and Rockland Steamboat Co. was represented by the Clara Clarita whose opponent was the side wheel steamer Ulysses.

The Fox Island and Rockland Steamboat Co. was the winner of this contest.

The first steamboat to run on a regular schedule between Vinalhaven and Rockland was the Pioneer (Capt. William R. Creed) which replaced the back the next."

"An exchange says, 'Mr. Courier of Camden made a flying trip to Vinalhaven this week.' That Mr. Courier was here is a fact, but he certainly did not come here flying because we saw him land on the Pioneer on the steamboat pier."

Just the same the Pioneer had been a faithful servant, and aside from the time when she was undergoing repairs was on duty and, in her time, the sole means of communication between Vinalhaven and the main land.

The Urge For Speed
Still the islanders felt that they were entitled to a speedier boat and from time to time it was rumored that this was to happen but the boat did not materialize. Nobody had given much thought of there ever again being any opposition on the Vinalhaven-Rockland line, but one day appeared on the scene the doughty little steamer "Emmeline," and the war was on.

This was during late summer of 1891.

From the start Vinalhaven folks took a lively interest in the contest with the majority of them favoring the opposing side as represented by the Emmeline.

Dawned the year 1892. "Tar-ra-boom-de-ay" was booming its last; everybody was singing "After the Ball" or whistling "High School Cadets." The World's Columbian exposition was in full swing; but the most momentous affairs to Vinalhaven folks were the strike which was on in the stoneyards and the steamboat war.

The Pioneer was kept on the route but a short time after the arrival of

And here is the good old Vinalhaven which knows the route backward, but which has had dry feet all winter on the South Marine Railway old sailing packet Greyhound (Capt. John Carver).

After this first steamboat war the Pioneer, which had been temporarily shelved because of her lack of speed, was again put into service and the speedy Clara Clarita, whose record for crossing the bay has never been beaten by any other steamer ever employed on this line, sailed victoriously away to become but a memory to Vinalhavenites.

It has been said by those who are supposed to be authority in such matters, that the Pioneer was the staunchest and most seaworthy of all the steamers ever in service between Vinalhaven and Rockland. This may the Emmeline as the latter boat was so much faster the poor old Pioneer became the laughing stock of all. Though a faithful servant she had been she had seen her day and nearly everybody felt that Vinalhaven needed and deserved speedier service, and the coming of the Emmeline was hailed with joy.

Enter the Forest Queen
So one day the Pioneer failed to appear and in her stead came the Forest Queen, with a bone in her teeth and a chip on her shoulder, and to the great chagrin of us who favored the other side of the contest, for although the boats left Rockland

GEN. ADELBERT AMES

Distinguished Son Of Rockland Who Won Fame As a Soldier and Statesman, Dies In Florida

Gen. Adelbert Ames, last surviving Union General of the Civil War, and a native of Rockland, died suddenly at his winter home, Ormond Beach, Fla. Thursday night. Until a few hours before his death Gen. Ames had enjoyed splendid health. He was a close friend and neighbor in Florida of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and the two were frequently seen playing golf together on the links at Ormond Beach.

At his bedside were his widow, Mrs. Blanche (Butler) Ames and two of his daughters, Mrs. Oakes Ames of Easton and Mrs. Brooks Stevens of Tewksbury. Also surviving are two sons, Butler Ames of Lowell and Adelbert Ames of Tewksbury, and two other daughters, Mrs. Spencer Borden of Fall River and Mrs. Andrew Marshall of Boston.

The body will be taken to Tewksbury, Mass., for burial at Hildreth cemetery.

The deceased was a son of Capt. Jesse and Martha (Tolman) Ames of this city and lived at one time in the house on the corner of North Main and Cottage streets, known as the Capt. Charles H. Marston place and now occupied by Robert U. Collins. While a student at West Point Military Academy he spent much of his vacation time here and was extremely popular. Surviving relatives in this city include two cousins, Miss Annie O. Conant and J. A. Tolman.

West Point's Oldest Graduate
Gen. Ames was the oldest living graduate of the United States Military Academy from which he graduated in 1861.

A brilliant soldier and officer himself, a student of military science and tactics, he placed Grant as the most famous general of the Civil War, head and shoulders above the others.

Gen. Ames was born Oct. 31, 1835, just 26 years before the start of the war of rebellion in which he was destined to lead Union soldiers in many famous engagements, not only at Bull Run, but also at Antietam, Fredericksburg (as aid to Gens. Hooker and Meade), in the Chancellorsville campaign and at Gettysburg.

As a boy he made a study of military matters and when the civil strife began in April, 1861, he was a member of the senior class at West Point. The following months he was in the field as a first lieutenant with the fifth regular artillery.

His regiment was in the thick of the fighting at Bull Run and while directing his battery at the front he was shot in the leg. He was placed on top of a caisson by his soldiers and continued to direct the firing until weakened by the loss of blood. He was cited for bravery and received the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Although wounded, he fought through the war and when Gen. Lee, whom he knew as a professor at West Point, began his noted race to the North to split the Union forces, Gen. Ames, then a brigadier, held this brigade in attack during the second day of fighting at Gettysburg. He was 28 years old then.

In Command At Ft. Fisher

Again he was cited for bravery, this time at Gettysburg for meritorious service. After taking an important part in the disastrous engagement at Cold Harbor, he maneuvered his division in storming Fort Gilman, but because of overwhelming numbers was repulsed by the enemy. His name was on the lips of the Union generals and he was given command of the assaulting troops to capture Fort Fisher. He carried his objective and the last great stronghold in that territory passed into the Union hands. His exploit at Fort Fisher brought him the rank of major general of volunteers at the age of 30 years.

A few years after Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox, Gen. Ames

THE STORY OF THE SUNBEAM

As Told To the Rockland Lions Club By Rev. Orville J. Gupitll Of the Seacoast Mission

The cabin cruiser Sunbeam, or its predecessor, has been docking at Rockland wharves for more than a quarter of a century, yet it is doubtful if there is in Rockland a score of citizens who could tell you the scope of the Maine Sea Coast Mission Society which it represents. Certainly not as outlined by the efficient executive of that organization, Rev. Orville J. Gupitll, in a talk before the Rockland Lions Club at Crescent Beach Wednesday night.

The meeting was being held in Edward Gonia's cottage, and the ubiquitous Ed, acting in the dual capacity of host and chef, was dispensing the good cheer for which he is famous. A roast beef supper had been prepared, and this was flanked by hot biscuits and tempting doughnuts of his manufacture.

A hint of the approaching annual meeting was conveyed by King Lion Saville's appointment of a nominating committee. On that committee are E. Stewart Orbeton, A. B. Allen, Dr. Bert Flanders and Ralph L. Smith.

Before a roaring open grate fire which served to disperse the chill brought from Europe by the southeast wind, the Lions gathered to hear Mr. Gupitll's story of how the Sea Coast Mission ministers to a clientele of 700 families, coming in contact casually with as many more.

The Sunbeam's cruises last summer took the sturdy craft as far east as Calais and as far west as Isle of Shoals. The Society's work is perhaps better known in other States than it is here on the scene of operations, and one of the cases which received its attention originated in New York city.

The Mission interests itself more especially with families living on the outer islands and the more isolated shore places. Mr. Gupitll has an assistant named Sargent who covers a territory having a radius of 38 miles. Services are conducted, clubs are organized, and from the moment of the "blessed event" until life's veil has been drawn there is nothing in the way of spiritual or material assistance that the Mission does not seek to convey.

"From birth to death epitomizes our work," said Mr. Gupitll, who raised his voice in opposition to the opinion existing in some quarters that the coast dwellers are an inferior people. He cited the instance of a resident of an outer island who is direct descendant of John Alden; he told how the poems of Edna St. Vincent Millay, a coast girl, so often reflected the spirit of the sea; and how President Roosevelt in selecting his Cabinet chose for Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, whose birthplace was in the vicinity of Damariscotta.

The element of isolation in these island communities is different than anything else, Mr. Gupitll told his listeners. The Sunbeam missionaries visit the homes of the newborn and the homes of mourning. A fellowship is established.

The people give according to their ability. The membership fee is $1; one man sends to the Society $100. But the voluntary contributions do not constitute one dollar in ten of the actual expense incurred by the work. It costs, for instance, $10,000 a year to maintain the Sunbeam. John D. Rockefeller is a generous giver; the Sigma Kappa Sorority has made the work its national memorial.

The Sunbeam measures 80 feet over all, is 16 feet on the beam, draws between seven and eight feet, and is driven by Diesel motors of 120 h. p. It is a lucky boat in defiance of super-

APRIL

'Tis the "noon of the spring-time, yet never a bird In the wind-shaken elm or the maple is heard; For green meadow-grasses wide levels of snow, And blowing of drifts where the crocus should blow; Where wind-flower and violet, amber and white, On south-sloping brook-sides should smile in the light. O'er the cold winter-beds of their late-waking roots The frosty flocks eddies, the ice-crystal shoots; And, longing for light, under wind-driven heaps, Round the boles of the pine-wood the ground laurel creeps, Unkissed of the sunshine, unbaptized of showers, buds scarcely swelled, which should burst into flowers. We wait for thy coming, sweet wind of the south! For the touch of thy light wings, the kiss of thy mouth; For the yearly evangel thou bearest Resurrection and life to the graves of the sod! O song of the spring-time, its light and its breath, Revive with the warmth and the brightness again, And in blooming of flower and budding of tree The symbols and types of our destiny see! The life of the spring-time, the life of the whole, And, as sun to the sleeping earth, love to the soul! —John Greenleaf Whittier.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.—I Cor. 15:20.

DR. HENRY VAN DYKE

We quote with permission a letter received from the editor, "on vacation."

"Announcement of the death on April 10, at his home, Avalon, in Princeton, N. J., of the internationally known preacher and author, Dr. Henry van Dyke, sounds a personal note. I had enjoyed with him a friendship that covered a considerable period of years, and which at the last of it, as his activities narrowed, became marked by the interchange of letters at Christmas-time. They were letters upon his part disclosing the scholar in literature, with a charm inseparable from whatever came from his pen, alike in poetry or prose, of which he made many books that circulated the world around.

"President Wilson, his intimate friend at Princeton, appointed Dr. van Dyke minister to the Netherlands, and later made him a chaplain in our Navy during the World War, with rank of commander. Doubtless many of this paper's readers will recall his visit to Rockland in that capacity and his address before a large audience, where in he made allusion to some of the features of the conflict, not generally known, hinting an airplane attack over Germany, the airplanes to be equipped with a lethal gas, and purposing by that heroic gesture to end the war. In a voice sunk to a dramatic whisper the speaker closed with the impressive words:

"And, boys, I think we have got the gas that will do it!"

"What was left of a long evening was spent at my home, the late Elmer S. Bird being also present. It was an occasion made memorable by the brilliant wit and conversation of the visitor in naval uniform, and his unaffected enjoyment of the things he encountered upon the shelves and walls. In particular there was a portrait of himself, framed in with a copy of his poem upon Tennyson, which he had forgotten having made for me, and was boyishly delighted at this unexpectedly coming upon. Afterward from his letters he would never omit allusion to 'My Brown Study' and the desire he treasured to be sitting in it once more."

THEY WILL ADVERTISE

A New York special states that a sales effort embracing the "biggest newspaper campaign ever put behind any single brand of gasoline," is announced by the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, owned jointly by the General Motors Corporation and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The campaign is termed the biggest sales move ever made by the corporation. In its announcement the company says that its officials believe that the "way to get business is to go after it through advertising."

"Many companies have curtailed their advertising expenditure in view of the conditions with which business is faced," says the announcement. "The Ethyl Gasoline Corporation will invest almost twice as much money in advertising this year as it has in the past."

They have the right of it. Not less advertising but more is what we are going to see in the newspapers the country over.

VACATIONS IN MAINE

"Vacationland-1933" issued by the Maine Central Railroad is a 48-page booklet, attractively colored and illustrated, and with 50,000 copies of it widely distributed there should be beneficial results in the way of summer tourist trade. Folks read with interest anything about the Pine Tree State, and not the least interesting statement in this book is the fact that from 75 cents a day to $4 a week has been cut from some of the prices at the resorts this year. Almost everywhere prices are being reduced "to meet conditions." It is not necessary to add that Penobscot Bay comes in for a good share of publicity, not forgetting our own Samoset Hotel.

THAT STEAMBOAT WAR

The story of the Vinalhaven steamboat war from the pen of a Vinalhaven man, is begun in this issue, and is admirably handled both from a news standpoint and the aspect of impartiality. The progress of that war was marked on July 15, 1868, was appointed a provisional Governor of Mississippi under the acts of Congress providing for such temporary government. Under his direction an election was held in Mississippi on Nov. 30, 1869, and on Jan. 11, 1870, the Legislature was convened by his direction and he was elected United States Senator of that State.

In 1873 he was chosen Governor of Mississippi by a popular vote and resigned his seat in the Senate. During his governorship serious trouble ensued between the whites and blacks, and Gen. Ames organized the militia to restore peace. Outbreaks were reported from many parts of the state and his opponents decided to put a ticket in the field for the first time since the war.

In the ensuing election Southern Democrats were victorious and Gen. Ames resigned in March, 1876, and came North. He was the last Northern Governor of a Southern State.

Signed The Round Robin

When the Spanish-American war started he offered his services to President McKinley and he was commissioned a brigadier-general of volunteers serving in the campaign around Santiago. He was one of the signers of the "round robin" which criticized equipment, medical and food supplies of the American army in Cuba. His military career ended when he was honorably discharged from the army on Jan. 3, 1899.

While a member of the United States Senate from Mississippi he was married to Miss Blanche Butler, daughter of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who was a representative from Massachusetts when the wedding ceremony took place at St. Anne's Episcopal Church at Lowell, July 26, 1870. At that time the bridegroom recorded his age as 34; Jackson, Miss., his residence; and his occupation as planter. The bride was 23 years old. The children born to Gen. and Mrs. Ames were Butler, Edith, Sarah, Blanche, Jessie and Adelbert.

Gen. Ames' ancestors came from England with the early settlers and settled in Plymouth colony, and later some of the family migrated to Rockland. His father was a sea captain, and since his ancestors lived far beyond the threescore and ten mark, he believed that was one explanation of why he enjoyed the years even though he was nearing the century mark.

The Ames residence is four miles from Lowell and overlooks North Tewksbury village from Prospect Hill at a height of 500 feet above the sea level. The estate includes about 260 acres of land and picturesque woodland, with a pool famed for its pure spring water. The mansion is 114 feet long with a width of 62 feet and contains 11 large fireplaces.

sition. The contract was let on a Friday, it was launched Friday, the last dollar of the cost was paid on Friday the 13th, and as if this were not enough, Mr. Guptill cited that it was built by a man named Jonah.

The permanent staff of the Mission comprises Mr. Guptill, Mr. Sargent and five women. In summer it has the assistance of five or six pastors, and 25 or 30 teachers and undergraduates. The trained nurse connected with the staff and known as a Delano nurse, works in conjunction with the Red Cross, and the Society always has the close co-operation of all the State departments.

The late Dr. Henry van Dyke, whose death was announced this week, was honorary president of the Society, which is entirely undenominational, and supported by many faiths, including Protestants, Catholics, Christian Scientists and Latter Day Saints. It always seeks to aid whatever church the community affords. In all it comes in contact with 30-odd religions and four or five varieties of baptism. Mr. Guptill, who was a Bath pastor for a number of years, belongs to what he describes as the left wing of the Congregational Church.

Mr. Guptill described the Mission's Christmas effort, the dental and throat clinics and various other phases which go to make the Sea Coast Mission Society one of the most important spiritual and benevolent factors now working for mankind in Maine. Membership and voluntary offerings are always welcomed.

During the open forum which followed Mr. Guptill's address the subject eventually shifted from missions to prohibition and was featured by a lively debate between the pastor and King Lion Saville, who is frankly a "wet." Interrogators found Mr. Guptill exceedingly well versed on the subject and prepared to meet it either from the standpoint of the man of the world or the man of God.

By and large it was one of the most interesting meetings the Rockland Lions Club has ever held, and the members lent an approving ear to Mr. Gonia's announcement that his cottage was always open to them.

PLENTY OF LAUGHS

Mock Radio, Bunny Comb Orchestra and Prof. O-I-Know At Universalists' Circle

The entertainment in conjunction with circle supper at the Universalist vestry Wednesday evening was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. C. E. Rollins arranged the program and imbued it with her contagious personality and humor. It was a mock radio program, with Frank M. Tibbets acting as announcer, his poise and aplomb completely outshining Graham McNamee's. The Bunny Comb Orchestra was a high light. The members were sheets over their heads, ornamented with large crepe paper ears, and were placed behind a long curtain with just their heads showing. The resemblance to "Easter bunnies" was quite marked, and the rendering of popular airs on the humble comb almost convinced the audience that a symphony orchestra was present.

Rev. George H. Welch, as Prof. O-I-Know, also scored a hit. Looking into the future, the professor replied to many inquiring letters pertaining chiefly to matters of the heart. The letters and answers involved many of the parishioners, much to their surprise, and enjoyment judging from the merriment which reigned.

Other features were songs by Mrs. Vivian Hewett, charmingly gownned in old-fashioned costume, with Mrs. Helen Wentworth at the piano; saxophone solos by Miss Florence Dean, accompanied by Miss Ruth Donalds; sketch, "The Beauty Doctor," directed by Miss Ellen J. Cochran, with Muriel McPhee, Jane Welch, Elizabeth Till, Maizie Joy, Melissa Bostick, and Betty McAlary in the cast; reading, "The Beau of Bath" by Samuel Lover, Miss Dean; and a humorous skit, "Henry and Betsey," Mrs. Rollins and E. E. Stoddard.

by bitter partisanship in which the entire population shared to some extent, but the community has long been at peace on the subject, and the incidents shorn of any rankling spirit, are looked upon merely as one of the most interesting features of Penobscot Bay history. Sidney L. Winslow's article is well worth the reading.

at the same time, the Forest Queen tied up at the wharf in Vinalhaven several minutes ahead of the Emmeline. Excitement ran high and hot arguments were heard on the street and in the stores and pool rooms. Local poets, hitherto unknown, contributed lengthy poems relative to the affair and seething with satire, to the local newspapers.

Even after the differences of employer and employee had been amicably adjusted, and work in the yards resumed, the interest in the boats was still maintained. Their daily arrival was still looked forward to with keen interest, bets were placed, and men dropped their hammers and hurried to the hilltops to watch for the steamers to come through the "Sound" and to ascertain which was in the lead.

Loyal boosters were who favored the Emmeline, but it must be truthfully admitted that not once did she come out the victor or even tie the Forest Queen in these contests.

The one and only straw the supporters of the Emmeline now had to cling to was the fact that she carried the most passengers.

Everybody counted the passengers as they came off the boats and it was unquestionably conceded that in this part of the contest the Emmeline had the better of it.

Down Went the Fares

The fare for the round trip on both boats at this time was 50 cents. Later the fare on the Vinalhaven was 25 cents but the fare on the Forest Queen or Gov. Bodwell was never below 50 cents.

Reports began to come now that both of the steamboat companies were to build new boats to put on the route in place of the Forest Queen and Emmeline. The Forest Queen was owned in Portland and not by the people who owned the Pioneer. Later it became known that the boat that was to be built to replace the Forest Queen would be called the Gov. Bodwell while its opponent was to be called the Vinalhaven.

All looked forward to the launching of the boats and the first to be pushed into the water was the Gov. Bodwell at Rockland, June, 1892. It was very rough on the water that day and the Forest Queen whose tall smokestack made her rather top heavy, was not the best sea boat in the world. She rolled "heavy and deep" and it was a ghastly looking crowd of excursionists that stepped from the Forest Queen when they returned home from the launching.

The Bodwell's Rival

Shortly after this event a crowd of excursionists were taken to Searsport to take a look at the new steamer Vinalhaven as she took to the water. The excursionists were taken on this trip by the Emmeline and Viking the latter being owned by the same company as the former. The Viking though not as large as the Emmeline was considerably speedier, and on the way up the river and while running at her normal speed, would occasionally be compelled to wait for the other boat to catch up. About the only report that came from this trip was that the Vinalhaven would soon be completed and that she had a nice model.

Time went on and it was said that the "Gov. Bodwell" would soon make her debut but we who favored the other side hoped she would not make appearance until the Viking could get a chance to lock horns with the cocky little old Forest Queen and take some of the conceit out of her supporters, for there was but little doubt but what the Viking was the faster boat.

And on one glad day the Emmeline was taken off for repairs and the Viking put into service. Tense and ominous was the atmosphere in Vinalhaven for the next few days as the people waited for the contest between the two boats to take place.

Crowds once more sought the hilltops with excited expectancy. (Concluded in Tuesday's issue)

DEMPSEY AND SCHMELING

The opportunity of seeing two champion heavyweights in the same ring on the same night is exciting much interest on the part of local fight fans, with the result that numerous carloads of them will doubtless head toward the Bangor auditorium April 25.

Famous fight stars indeed! Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling. The world is full of sports who will never be convinced that Dempsey did not win over Tunney, and as for Schmeling, there are also many fans who feel that he did not get his just deserts in the Sharkey battle.

At Bangor Schmeling will box his sparring partner, and Dempsey will referee all the bouts. It is some stunt that "Millers Enterprises" is pulling off to bring these stars to Maine.

There will also be 30 rounds of fight to a finish stuff. Schmeling will be on between 9 and 9.30.

WHOLESALESARE PIN CHAMPS

The Wholesalers won the championship of the Knox County Bowling League, leading the Eagles by a comfortable margin. Here are the figures:

	W	L	P.C.
Wholesalers,	49	31	.613
Eagles,	45	35	.562
South Thomaston,	44	36	.550

Burpee,	21	59	.263

Rockland Eagles Lose

The Gardiner Eagles tripped up the local birds, but the margin was only 19 pins. Staples of Gardiner and Smith of Rockland had a pretty race for high total honors, the man from the Kennebec winning by two pins. Staples had high single, 118. The summary:

Rockland-Smith 512, Benner 441, J. Thomas 468, H. Thomas 454, Cobb 493, total 2368.
Gardiner-Goggin 451, Staples 514, Ellis 455, Kearns 485, B. Goggin 482, total 2367.

Late bowling results: Wholesalers 3, Burpee Furniture 2; Three Crows 1621, Wall's Wonders 1568.

IF YOU WANT REAL BARGAINS —IN— WALL PAPERS AND PAINTS CALL AT THE C. M. BLAKE WALL PAPER STORE NORTHEND, ROCKLAND

Applications for the position of postmaster at Matineus close next Friday and in due season an examination will be held in this city. Applicants must be 21 years of age, but must be less than 65 years old at the time of taking the examination. The compensation of the postmaster the last fiscal year was $641.

At the regular meeting of Rockland Encampment, I.O.O.F. Wednesday night inspection in the secret work was given by Grand Junior Warden Luke S. Davis. After the meeting the three-linkers partook of a feast of white shelled steamed clams, coffee and doughnuts and crackers. Visitors were present from Union.

Twenty-one years ago yesterday the liner Titanic crashed into an iceberg in the northern lane, and went to the bottom with great loss of life. Many readers will recall the sensation caused when the news was received in Rockland. The writer recalls that one Boston newspaper told in poster type across the top of the page how the band played "Nearer My God To Thee," as the ship went down.

The grass fire caution published conspicuously in this paper several issues ago, was not without results in some quarters of the city, notably on South Main street, where almost every property owner appears to have taken time by the forelock and burned his grass before an accidental fire could create a menace. There are still many places where a spark could cause lots of damage. Burn that grass now.

On her way to her home in East Milton, Mass., the other day Mrs. Rose Merrifield Randlett, formerly of Thomaston, espied two women eagerly reading a copy of her home paper, The Courier-Gazette. It might have been a bit of homesickness which caused her to make herself known. The two women were Miss Etta Smith and Miss Carrie Smith. They left Rockland 47 years ago, but still found much to interest them in the columns of The Courier-Gazette.

Attention is again directed to Claremont Commandery's Easter observance—breakfast at the Temple at 9 a. m., and Easter services at the Thomaston Baptist Church, with sermon by Rev. H. S. Kilborn. The Rockland City Band will accompany the Sir Knights to Thomaston, where there will be a parade from Erin street to the church. Easter Sunday will be observed in Thomaston out of deference to the numerous members the Commandery has there.

An item in the Boston Herald states that at the annual election of the governing board of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Albert T. Gould (of Boston and Thomaston) one of the best known admiralty lawyers in the country, was elected chairman of the board. He has long been a member of the Maritime Association, is president of the Bowdoin College Alumni Association, chairman of the board of governors of the Merchant Marine Club of Boston, and is affiliated with several fraternal organizations. Robert G. Stone of the banking firm of Hayden Stone & Co. was elected vice-chairman of the governing board. He is associated with several coastwise lines out of Boston.

Twenty-five members of the Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church met in the parlors with the president, Mrs. J. C. MacDonald, presiding. Mrs. Evelyn Sherman was chosen a delegate to represent the Society at the joint meeting of the missionary societies of the different churches and W.C.T.U. to be held with Mrs. H. V. Tweedie, North Main street, next Friday. Mrs. MacDonald read some selections from some of the leading "modern prophets," pertaining to the Jewish situation. "Missionary Shadows" was the subject for the afternoon, Mrs. Nellie McKay having the first "shadow" with "Borneo," as her subject; the second shadow, "Africa," was given by Miss Alice Erskine, and the third, "Germany," by Mrs. H. W. Frohock. These talks were given mainly from memory, which added greatly to the pleasure of the listeners. Mrs. Mildred Haven sang a hymn.

Just received another lot of Jigsaw Puzzles, 300 pieces. Regular price 25 cents, sale price while they last nine cents each. At the Vesper A. Leach Store.—adv.

Occupants of the snow covered cars which have been coming into Rockland since the misplaced April blizzard opened their eyes in astonishment when they found dust blowing in their streets instead of two-foot drifts like they had found in western Maine and New Hampshire. No snow east of Damariscotta, was the report.

All of the towns in the Knox and Lincoln baseball circuit have now presented their spring "dope" except Thomaston, and this will appear in due season. The schoolboy athletes have been scanning The Courier-Gazette's preliminary surveys with a great deal of interest, and some fine figuring is being done.

County Commissioner Foy W. Brown of North Haven came to the city yesterday with perfectly good intentions of going to Boston to see a league ball game. When he learned that hundreds of cars were stranded in belated snowdrifts between Portland and Boston and that the Boston diamond was a sea of mud and slush he hied sadly back to North Haven and his jigsaw puzzles.

Two trim looking schooner yachts anchored off Tillson wharf attracted much attention, and aroused no little curiosity. The explanation came yesterday forenoon when 12 New Yorkers arrived in a special car attached to the forenoon train, and immediately boarded the craft. The yachts have been in winter quarters at Deer Isle and are being taken to New York. The owners and their guests appeared to be happy over the prospect.

Two boys were arraigned in Rockland Municipal Court Thursday charged with stealing a motor car belonging to William J. Robertson of Thomaston. Because of their youth, and the desire to refrain from giving them a court record the case was continued, the boys to report to the sheriff's department every two weeks. The car was abandoned at Woolwich. The boys evidently tried to steal another car in Bath, but were frightened away, and "thumbed" a ride to Portland. One was brought back by Harry Thompson of the State Police, and the other came in custody of a Portland officer.

Removal of Red Cross headquarters from The Bicknell to the Central Maine Power Co. building, Union street, will take place in the near future. This change is made as a necessary economy step. The new rooms are warm, light and much larger than the present quarters. While the Easter Sunday programs in the local churches are built on simpler lines than in previous years, the triumphant spirit of the season manifests itself therein nevertheless. The need of hope is in everyone's heart this Easter tide, and it is the prayer in all churches that this hope and inspiration may be given.

SERMONETTE

We Stand At the Open Tomb

Easter, again the Christian church throughout the world, rejoices in the faith in her risen Lord. The ancient prophets foretold and anticipated the resurrection. Job, writing in an age before Moses, affirmed "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I shall see God." The Psalmist prophesied, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." Isaiah said, "thy dead men shall live together; with my dead body shall they arise."

Daniel declared, "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; some to the everlasting life and some to shame and everlasting contempt."

Christ declared in almost similar words to the Jews, "Marvel not, for the hour is coming in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." To Martha he said, "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever believeth in me shall never die."

There is no section of history better authenticated than the open tomb Mary Magdalene discovered in the darkness of that first Easter morning, nor of the events which followed. It is the foundation of Christian faith and the hope of all Christians. Believe it thou this. We answer with Martha, "Yea Lord."

William A. Holman.

Assembling a cast to match in magnitude the first screen appearance together of John, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore, the Royal Family of stage and screen, was one of the biggest problems ever faced by a casting director, when the huge list of players appearing in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Rasputin and the Empress" was chosen.

In the dramatic spectacle of the last days of the Romanoffs, which comes Monday and Tuesday, not only appear the members of the most famous theatrical family in the world, but the most imposing list of supporting players ever gathered.

Hundreds in gorgeous uniforms and costumes enact the pomp of an audience in the great throne room of the Winter Palace in St. Petersburg, now known as Petrograd.

Sorrow has come to this community in the death of Mrs. Caroline M. Winchenbach, widow of Herbert G. Winchenbach. She had been in poor health for several years, and through the past winter had been unable to attend to her household duties. She went to Boston where she entered the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital, thinking that an operation would benefit and help her to regain her health. The operation was considered a success, but the heart so weakened, gave out under the strain.

Mrs. Winchenbach was a native of Passcoag, R. I. but had lived in this place nearly all of the time since her marriage to her late husband. Keeping the store, her home was always open to young and old alike, and a warm welcome was extended to everyone.

"In the Beginning—"

"In the beginning" . . . RELIGION was the guiding factor of every race and country. When our rugged forefathers landed at Plymouth Rock they worshiped in acknowledgment of their religion and today we keep faith with these pilgrim fathers. Today in every community are found the churches carrying on!

But that which is always with us we too often discount. It is not hard to forget that PRACTICAL RELIGION is the keynote of our community standard of living.

"For two cents" the churches in every community could be improved ONE HUNDRED PER CENT! Have you ever heard of "the religious nickel?" National standards show that the average Sunday contribution is five cents per capita—the support of the churches, based on national statistics, averages about $1.00 per month per member, or twenty-five cents a month per person—six cents a Sunday—LESS THAN A PENNY A DAY!

FIVE CENTS A WEEK we pay for the advantages of a religion for which our forefathers gave their lives! ONE CENT A DAY we contribute to the support of the religious ideals and principles on which our country—the leader among all nations—was established.

What percentage of the money we spend per week on an average is this "religious nickel?"

And yet THE CHURCH IS THE PRIME REQUISITE IN EVERY COMMUNITY, LARGE OR SMALL!

And "for two cents" its service, strength and lawful influence could be increased ONE HUNDRED PER CENT!

ARE WE A "RELIGIOUS NICKEL" COMMUNITY that goes to make the national standard of church support—or ARE WE A THINKING, GOD-FEARING, PROGRESSIVE COMMUNITY that for "two cents" will double the value of our churches to us?

EASTER 1933

[For The Courier-Gazette]
The cold, brown clouds of frozen earth.
Inert, so seeming dead,
Erstwhile all white with drifting snow.
And storm clouds overhead,
Are of the past. Old mother earth
Stirs with new life again.
At every pulsing heart throbs beat.
She now begins to show
New beauty in the warmer skies
Reflected down below.
In mirrored lake and mountain top,
In rivulet and stream.
That turn and twist as they flow on
And bright in sunshine gleam.
The earth awakes from long sleep—
Old Boreas now must abdicate.
The spring time dawns at last.
The soft blue skies with fleecy clouds,
The shoots of tender green,
The robins' note, the bluebirds' call,
Bespeak the coming spring.
The Lenten season now is o'er.
Its sacredness given.
As is the earth freed from its bonds,
So sin-sick souls are shriven.
True message of the Easter-tide
Is waited from the sky.
Eternal promise, rare and sweet:
No soul can ever die.
As lies the earth in winter time
In deathlike trance so still,
So doth the earthly body lie
When nature works her will.
And as the grass, the trees, the flowers,
Awake when call is given,
So doth the soul-life in response
Unfold itself in Heaven.
Blest promise of the Easter-tide,
A promise true and rare,
A promise of eternal life,
A life supreme and fair!

Ring out! sweet Easter bells! ring out!
Ring out in glad refrain:
Ring promise of eternity,
Ring life renewed again.
In other sphere, in other form,
Where space and time are given
To still progress—new Jesus learn,
Ring, "Home" at last is "Heaven."
Elizabeth O. Marsh.

At The High School

(By the Pupils)

The sensation of the week—looking forward to the coming vacation which begins today!

Journalism students after writing a column for Rockland High School this week for the Maine school news have been experimenting with verse forms. Veltzora Look contributed this limerick:

Oh, Mary had a white lambie
Who never strayed far from his mammy
Into the kitchen they broke,
When their mistress awoke
There they stood with their faces all jammy.

The girls track squad is engaged in daily practice. Carrie Breen has been elected captain and Ruby Sundstrum, manager. Everybody is working hard for the interclass meet to be held April 29, since high-liners at this event will probably form the teams competing with Morse, Lincoln, and Camden later.

The 7-4 program presented at the Junior High assembly was conducted by Mildred Shannon. Musical numbers and recitations were given by: Marion Ludwick, Bobby Hills, Ethel Hayes, Charles Toner, Madeline Philbrook, Lillian Young and Ernest Johnson.

Due to the depression and the annual debt incurred on the venture in late years, Rockland High will have no "Cauldron" this spring unless the seniors decide to take it over as a class project.

Debates are in order of the day for work in junior English classes. These two propositions have been presented this week: Resolved: That the publication of detailed accounts of crime should be prohibited by law and "Resolved that present day methods of advertising are detrimental to the interests of the public." Affirmative teams were formed by Silvia Shafter, Ruth Dondis, Nathalie Jones, Ruth Rackliffe, Marguerite Norwood and Anna Winchenbaugh; negatives, by Charles Ellis, Charles Haver, Hervey Allen, Vernard Crockett, Stanley Quinn and Bernard Cohen.

Ralph C. Wentworth, county farm agent, speaker at the senior high assembly, Tuesday morning, gave a very clear and interesting explanation of the operation of the Farm Bureau and the duties of the county agents. The program also included a piano solo by Margaret Halliday of the senior class. Announcements of the winners in the J. F. Gregory Sons' Essay contest on "America, Her Destiny" were also made.

Miss Tower and Miss Brown have been absent from their classes this week because of illness.

Seniors have started work on graduation essays, under the supervision of Mrs. Carillo. The program this year is to be formed around the central theme, "A Century of Progress" carrying out the ideas suggested by the world's fair celebration at Chicago.

The Commercial Club gave a social Friday night in the gymnasium with music by the Rhythm Kings Orchestra. An interesting entertainment of music and impersonations, in charge of Irene Billaco, Helen Jordan and Isabelle Choate, was given. The program: Piano solos, At the Close of a Long Day, Sentimental Gentleman, Margaret Dunton; accordion solos, Carl Spear; vocal solo, The Moon Song, Kate Smith, Helenamary Mahoney; vocal solo, Twenty Million People, Fit as a Fiddle, Tony Accardi; piano solo, Valse Caprice, Cyril Scott, Nathalie Jones; vocal solo, When It's Sleepy Time Down South, Eva Dow; impersonations, Helenamary Mahoney and Tony Accardi. The accompanists were Isabelle Choate, Catherine Chisholm and Margaret Dunton.

Rev. B. P. Erowne of Holyoke, Mass., will speak on "The Menace of Propaganda" at the meeting next Thursday of the Baptist Men's League.

PARK THEATRE

Whether or not you believe in reincarnation, you will certainly be intrigued and thrilled to your very marrow by "The Mummy" which comes for Monday and Tuesday.

"The Mummy" reaches back into the mists of antiquity and uncovers a love which existed 3700 years ago in the days of the Egyptian Pharaohs, but its main story is modern in background and theme. Karloff makes his starring debut in this picture. His mummy is so real, so death-like, that it is almost unbelievable. The great makeup artist proves conclusively that he is supreme in his field of characterization. Zita Johann is a new exotic actress who will be well remembered by those who saw her on Broadway. David Manners, Arthur Byron, Edward Van Sloan and Bramwell Fletcher also carry off dramatic roles with finesse—adv.

"CODFISH ARISTOCRACY"

Comedy Written By Adelyn Bushnell To Be Presented By American Legion

Devotees of the drama are looking forward to the presentation of "Codfish Aristocracy," a three-act comedy, at Wats hall, Thomaston, April 24-25, under auspices of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps (Winslow-Holbrook Post). This copyrighted play was written by Adelyn Bushnell in 1927, and is said to be one of the cleverest from the pen of that talented woman. Miss Bushnell will direct the staging of the production and play the leading role, with Marshall Bradford in the leading male role.

Williamstown, Maine, is the scene of the story of "Codfish Aristocracy." Place, plot and characters are purely fictitious, although persons familiar to everyone may be recognized in the characters, as such persons exist everywhere. The story is said to be a picture of a certain class of people—"codfish aristocracy"—that exists in every corner of the country. It is a picture of the men and women and conditions that existed at the close of the World War—people of good families, with some money, good homes, and maintaining respectable contacts. Yet they flit, they drink too much, they "step out," the bootlegger is prominent, but still they consider their morals are above reproach, and are ready to criticize in others the things they do themselves. They constitute the class that has grown away from the stern morals of the preceding generation and which has not yet found its way to the present generation of young people whose feet are firmly planted on the ground.

There is plenty of drama, a wholesome moral, sparkling comedy. The play remains as Miss Bushnell wrote it with the exception of the song "If Prohibition Goes Through," which was incorporated in the play only a few weeks ago; this will be used by Mrs. Elizabeth Mason in the final act. It is a peculiar coincidence that Miss Bushnell when writing the play was an unconscious prophet, for in the lines she stated the repeal of prohibition would take place in July, 1933.

GLENCEOVE

Misses Dorothy and Arlene Keller of West Rockport visited their grandmother Mrs. Charles Maxey Tuesday and Wednesday. Their mother Mrs. Henry Keller was a guest also.

Mrs. Alton Richards of Rockland and Mrs. Henry Allen of Tenant's Harbor with her daughters Charlene and Elaine, were guests Wednesday of Mrs. Richards' sister Mrs. Charles E. Gregory.

The fire department of Glencove, under the direction of Warden Charles A. Studley, tested out the hose and burned some grass on the land of the Small property Tuesday as a fire precaution. The boys and girls here had a good time as there are 20 of them and they all took part, and the older people enjoyed having their help. This was all voluntary service just to make things better for those who live here. Bert Maxey put out the cigars. There is now a move on by Capt. Tom Farley for all to go on the beach some day soon and clean it up for the summer bathing season. This beach was well patronized last year, more than 200 being there for the day at times, many of them picnic parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seavey were in Belfast Sunday. Mrs. William Ferris of Cutler returned with them and will be their guest for a while. Herbert N. Brazier was in Rockport Tuesday afternoon and with the other members of the school board and Supt. Toner inspected the different schoolhouses as to repairs.

Road Commissioner Walker was in this place Tuesday and had some work done on Warren and Commercial streets. Work is to continue on South street and Robert Studley Alton Winecap, Charles Hare, James Sullivan and Charles A. Studley are employed there.

WORLD PRODUCTION OF GOLD SPURRED

Scarcity and High Purchasing Power Cause.

Washington.—The search for gold is now being carried on at high speed. And, curiously enough, the reason is the economic depression. Whereas there is a surplus of most other products, gold is scarce and its purchasing power is high. In consequence prospectors are in the field in large numbers; old gold mines, abandoned because of poor yields, have been reopened and are proving profitable again; the gold centers of the world are unusually active; and gold stocks have reversed the trend of the market, going up instead of down.

Final figures for the world's gold production in 1932 have not yet been issued, but according to conservative estimates a new high of 23,500,000 fine ounces was reached.

In the United States, which ranks third in gold production in the world (South Africa is first and Canada second), the estimated total mined in 1932 was 2,507,587 ounces, valued at $51,836,400, according to official bureau of the mint figures. This was the highest yield since 1924.

Prospectors Reappear.

An interesting development of gold production in the United States last year was the reappearance in great numbers of the picturesque old-time prospectors, who had practically disappeared in recent years. There is always the chance of gold being found from Oregon to the Yosemite, and unemployable in the western states, particularly in California and Colorado, has sent a small army of the idle, armed with picks, shovels, pans and sluice boxes, into the mountains and valleys.

One expert of the bureau of mines estimated that 100,000 men are now engaged in such labors, as compared with perhaps 1,000 before the economic whirlwind hit the country.

Our Producing Areas.

The principal gold-producing areas in this country are in California, Alaska, South Dakota and Colorado, in the order named. Practically all the important mines in California produce "straight gold," and that is true of the Homestake mine in South Dakota, the largest individual producer, and of the mines of Alaska and Colorado.

Placer mining accounted for 20 per cent of the American production in 1929, which was considered a normal year, while lode mining produced 80 per cent. In the placers the gold is recovered from gravel and sand by hand washing, sluicing, hydraulicking, drifting or dredging, while the lode mines produce gold mainly from underground workings, from ore as distinguished from gravel.

Lawsuit Over Cemetery Recalls Death of Squaw

Fremont, Mich.—There is a dispute in court as to ownership of the old Indian cemetery between John Warmelink, owner of the farm from which the cemetery originally was taken, and the city of Fremont, which holds quit claim deeds from the heirs of the original owner, Henry Pego.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardsmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

The Cuckolds

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Seavey motored to Ellsworth Monday afternoon, returning Tuesday. They brought with them their daughter Myrtle, whom they are keeping out of school on account of a severe nervous trouble. She will take the exams with her class in June and will have no difficulty in passing the tests, as she is one of the highest ranking pupils.

The keepers have completed their work on the lower end of the flat slip. They have also built a small breakwater on the west side of the station to protect the yard from the heavy seas that do so much damage. This breakwater extends from the tower across one end of the yard and should be a good protection. The new breakwater built by the carpenters, looks as though it would be a strong barrier against any sea.

We were sorry to hear of the illness of our neighbors on Seguin, and hope they are all much better at this time.

Owl's Head

The Hibiscus passed this station Wednesday morning at 9 going west. Quite a few visitors at the light last week, though the road is still bad in places.

A few good days will complete the cleaning and painting at this station. The tug Tamaqua passed this light Saturday at 7 p. m. with a barge in tow. Astern of the latter was the five-masted schooner Marie De Ronde.

Seguin

We are just recovering from our spell of illness. Mrs. Cameron, the nurse who attended Keeper Urquhart, has returned to Bath and Dr. Jefferson made his final call the last week of March.

Three fishermen had trouble with the reverse gear of their engine one day recently. They came into the cove and called at the house to telephone to the coast guard, who towed them to the beach.

Keeper Urquhart and Second Assistant Lathrop rowed into Popham one day this week. Mr. Connors and F. E. Singer went ashore the next day. Miss Hester Connors who has been visiting her brother for two months went with them and returned to her home in Boothbay Harbor.

St. Croix River

The St. Croix Island and surrounding area will be a riot of blooms next month if the old adage "April showers bring forth May flowers" is true, for eight of the first ten days has been a rain storm, the other two being blessed with showers.

There is some activity around the shores as the owners are having their respective boats put into repair for summer cruising.

The owners of the two masted vessel John Norris, of Calais, which has been anchored off our island all winter, are getting her into condition for sailing.

With this activity along the river, the grass showing green, tulips and jonquils up two inches or more, we feel happy to know that behind all the clouds and rainy weather spring is waiting to burst forth in all its glory.

Miss Nellie Spinney, R.N., of St. Stephen, N. B., was a recent guest at the lighthouse. Miss Spinney has been engaged as night nurse at the home of Mrs. Ida Cook, where her son Arthur has been critically ill following an operation for appendicitis. Miss Sherrade also of St. Stephen was day nurse. We are pleased to report that Mr. Cook is improving fast now and hope to see him about soon.

Mrs. George McDonald of Waterville spent last weekend with her sister Mrs. Fred McCurdy in Red Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison and daughter Marjorie who have been spending the winter in Florida, have returned to their home in Red Beach.

Services were resumed at the Union Congregational Church, Red Beach, Sunday. Rev. Thomas Cornish is pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Young, of Mrs. Annie Agnew and Mrs. Bert Chisholm were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCurdy.

Portland Breakwater

Harold Marr was home one night with his family from South Boston. He is mate on the government boat Anderson, and is moving his family to Dorchester the last of this week.

Mrs. Walter Hamilton and Mrs. Russell Whitney were callers at the light recently.

Nathan Burrows has returned to Gloucester after spending the winter at Southport. His step-daughters came after him.

Mrs. P. L. Marr motored to Kennebunk with her daughter Mrs. Herbert Noyes and attended a Girl Scout entertainment Monday evening. Misses Hylda and Ethelene Payne, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Marr, had a part in the play. She returned Wednesday with Sgt. and Mrs. Samuel Payne in their 1933 Chevrolet. Mr. and Mrs. E. Charles Whitney and family of Providence spent last weekend at the light with Mrs. Whitney's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Noyes and son joined them Sunday for dinner.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of our brother Clarence Marr, retired light keeper, at Marshall Point light station, and also hope that Keeper Edward Pierce is better of neuritis. We hope to go to see them when the weather is more settled.

Petit Manan

Keeper Fagonde and second assistant Roscoe L. Fletcher made a trip to Beals in the Muriel A. March 5 to take the keeper's children to school after spending the spring vacation at the light. Floyd Beal and Eliza Beal returned with them for a short visit with Keeper and Mrs. Fagonde.

Keeper and Mrs. Fagonde have been ill with gripe for the past few days but are on the mending hand at this writing.

We are having stormy weather so far this month, but are looking for better weather soon to continue the spring cleaning and painting.

Nash Island

Not much news at this time. All are busy cleaning house, getting ready for inspection.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Chione were off for the day with their mother, and took the boys back to school. We are looking forward to the day our son Carl comes from Portland, it won't be very long now. He is always glad to get back to Nash's with his folks.

Boats from Cape Split are all going out to haul. They make up for bad days when they get days like this one. They have to, as lobsterers are at 12 cents and bait is $2.50 a barrel. It surely is tough on them at these prices. Will sign off with best regards to all light keepers and families.

Portland Head

Easter Sunday tomorrow. F. W. Wellington was overnight guest of F. O. Hilt Thursday of last week.

R. T. Sterling was in Portland on business Wednesday.

A. W. Hathorn is visiting F. O. Hilt and family.

F. O. Hilt, Mrs. Hilt, Mrs. Sterling and A. W. Hathorn were in Portland Tuesday on business.

Edward Toothaker and Miss Mary Toothaker of Portland and Joseph Gibbons of Westbrook visited the Sterlings last Sunday.

Mrs. F. O. Hilt, W. R. Hilt and A. W. Hathorn motored to Lynn last Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Thomas.

Capt. and Mrs. John Cameron and Mrs. Arthur Cameron visited R. T. Sterling and family last Sunday. Mr. Cameron was stationed at Portland Head 25 years. He is now retired.

Good Turners Club met with Adora Hilt Wednesday. Busy fingers and needles were in evidence despite the cloudy day, and chatting didn't lag. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Mollie Mitchell.

Here comes our snowballs. When we opened our eyes Thursday morning our fog signal was working and a snowstorm was in the air and all around us. Doesn't look much like April showers and Easter bonnets.

West Quoddy Head

Thank you, Editor Fuller, for the postcard recently sent from Miami. I appreciate your thoughtfulness, and extend a cordial invitation for you to visit West Quoddy Head when it is convenient for you to do so.

The skeleton tower at this station which supports the antenna for the transmitters is 185 feet above sea level. The top of the tower has a safe landing six by eight feet enclosed by a three-foot railing, and the top is easy of access—that is, if your nerves are good. From the top of the tower the panorama is wonderful and since its erection many persons have viewed the surrounding country from it.

April 8 at 8 p. m. the West Quoddy Head coast guard crew were called to rescue a man clinging to the top of an overturned dory in the treacherous waters of Lubec narrows. They immediately put off, but arrived just a few minutes late as men from Lubec had just rescued the man. The late arrival of the crew was due to the distance they had to cover in a howling northeaster and the delay in notifying them. The crew are two men short, which means they have to stand double watch. Nevertheless they are keenly watchful for an opportunity to render assistance.

April 9 Keeper Larrabee enjoyed a brief visit from Keeper Wells of Saddleback Ledge light. Keeper Wells is having 15 days' furlough at his home in South Lubec.

Plenty of wild geese in this vicinity during the past week but "no kill 'em."

the game warden are on the alert during the spring flights north. There are signs of activity around the Lubec factories. It is rumored if suitable fish are available they will begin packing April 15.

Pemaquid Point

April has surely done some weeping since she arrived but we are hoping for more sunshine the latter part of the month.

The mud has dried up leaving our road rough. They will soon be scraping it now getting ready for the summer traffic.

Spring housecleaning is nearly completed inside the light. Frogs have been heard peeping. The Hibiscus passed the light Wednesday, going to Portland.

A five-masted schooner passed the Point Monday, going westward. Mrs. Elwell called on Clara Poland Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard Moon were visitors at the light this week. Mr. and Mrs. Heber Poland were visitors at Mrs. Clara Poland's Sunday.

The people at the Point were sorry to hear of the illness of Capt. Marr, a former keeper of this light. We hope he is better at this time.

Mrs. Gerald Knipe is visiting her daughter Mrs. Mertie Curtis of New Harbor.

Our mail man Jimmie is back on his route after being absent a week because of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brackett and Mrs. Ethel Brackett have returned from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they spent the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Brackett will soon be getting Hotel Pemaquid ready for summer guests.

(By Comrade Oliver Hamlin)

At the last V.F.W. meeting it was voted to hold a social meeting with the Ladies Auxiliary once each month.

Any comrade or veteran who has a helmet, gas mask or rifle used in the Spanish-American or World War is asked to loan the same to this Post for hall decoration purposes. Contributions will be much appreciated.

Comrade Benson was elected quartermaster at the last meeting to fill the vacancy left by Comrade Sizemore's resignation.

Since moving into the new Post rooms the attendance of veterans has increased 10%. The meetings are very interesting and a lot of information in regard to veterans' welfare can be obtained by attending. The next regular meeting is Tuesday night, April 25. A lot of important business is to be discussed.

THE MOON HOAX

Satirical Writings Nearly a Century Ago Accepted By Many As Facts

Ninety-seven years ago, when the New York Sun was just rising, so to speak, its editor became indignant over the quality of the material being supplied in the books of Dr. Thomas Dick of Dundee on astronomy, and he ascribed the earthquakes, the hurricanes and the volcanoes of this earth to the direct displeasure of God, who had imposed them on us as punishment for the sin of Adam and Eve.

Richard Adams Locke, the editor, had kept silent on the matter, though Dr. Dick's voluminous writings were widely accepted in the world. But Dr. Dick went on to propose that on the chance that the moon was inhabited, great triangles, or eclipses, many miles in extent, should be built on the plains of Siberia in the hope that the Moonites might see them, recognize them as signals from the earth, and reply in kind.

The owners of the new Sun listened to the suggestion of Mr. Locke, who was a sedulous reader of scientific literature, that a "Moon story" should be written, to read serially in the Sun, and, without any mention of Dr. Dick's proposal, to satirize it by exaggeration to the point of ridiculousness.

The series began in September, 1835, and the articles were supposed to be lifted from the supplement of an Edinburgh review—which of course didn't exist.

The stories had an enormous success; crowds thronged the Sun office, eagerly buying the editions as they appeared, and the printing equipment could not supply all the copies demanded.

At the end of the series the matter was reprinted in pamphlet form, and sold some 40,000 copies in a few weeks. And in 1852 the whole affair was retold in a delightful little book collated by William N. Griggs and printed in New York by Brunell & Price.

It is long out of print, of course, but an occasional copy turns up in the second-hand shops. With one such copy was included a letter from Mr. Locke, dated in 1852, to a Mr. Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong had evidently asked the author of the moon story where he could find a copy of the pamphlet of 17 years before, and referred to the thing as the "moon hoax."

Mr. Locke replied that he had not seen any copy of the "moon satire, no hoax," and in that phrase let out the whole story of a joke that recoiled on the joker.

The satire began with a tale of an enormous telescope—its lens was 24 feet in diameter—which had been shipped to Sir John Herschel, at the Cape of Good Hope. This telescope, with some optical devices that were just as entirely imaginary, had brought the moon so close to the observers that they could see the hair on a man's head.

A full account of the moon's vegetation and fauna, including bison that had mats of hair between their ears in a thick shield which could be lowered against the dazzling light of the sun and raised for the purpose of seeing. There were "man bats;" there were two-legged beaver that carried their young in their arms and built fires in their huts.

It is easy to say, at this distance, that nobody should have been deceived by such stuff. The fact was, however, that every bit of it was accepted; not only that, but the story found corroborators at the very door of the Sun office.

One morning in the crowd that was waiting for the paper, a highly respectable looking elderly gentleman in a fine broadcloth Quaker suit told the crowd that he was at the East India Docks in London when the vast lens, of seven tons weight, with the whole gigantic apparatus of the telescope described in the story was taken on board an East India ship for the Cape of Good Hope; that he himself saw it hoisted aboard. He even corrected the statement in the Sun story that the lens was shipped from St. Catherine's Docks!

On another day, at the same place, a person of perfectly respectable appearance boldly asserted that he himself had a copy of the Edinburgh "Supplement" from which the Sun was publishing its daily extracts, and that he felt bound to state that up to that moment the extracts had been faithfully made, without any alteration or addition whatever!

When the pamphlet appeared, it was translated and republished all over Europe, and received as much credence as ridicule. James Gordon Bennett attempted an expose in New York, which Mr. Locke very neatly turned. But the fact remained that what had been attempted as a satire was accepted, first as a sensational discovery, true in all details, and finally as a hoax.

National Training School Offers To Provide Instruction By Mail

The American Nautical Academy, National Training School for merchant marine officers, Washington, D. C., offers a course in nautical instruction by mail in their own home to boys and young men between 10 and 21 years of age who wish to become acquainted with the advantages offered by the United States Merchant Marine as a career.

There is no tuition charge for any of the courses offered by the Academy. The instruction includes, in so far as it is possible to them by mail, the following subjects: General characteristics of ships; daily routine and duties in connection with life on board ship; use of life buoys; first aid; signals (International and Morse Code); the compass, log, and lead; ground tackle and deck seamanship; duties of lookouts; the watch in port and at sea; cordage; boats; types, nomenclature, gear; and duties of a boatkeeper.

Examinations will be held at intervals and boys receiving a passing grade will be allowed to spend a period of time during summer vacation on board a training ship of the Academy in order to gain practical experience. There is no charge for instruction nor for living quarters on board ship, but a small charge is made for meals.

While on board ship during the summer the boys will follow the regular daily ship routine and will be given practical instruction in nautical subjects including seamanship, rowing, running and use of motor boats, swimming, lifesaving and naval drill.

Those boys and young men who desire to secure this instruction by mail should write to the American Nautical Academy, Training Ship Marsala, Edgewater, N. J.

MAINE LIBRARY NOTES

Lewiston Public Library reports the largest circulation in its history, almost double the number recorded ten years ago. According to the report of Miss Annie L. Barr, the librarian, "this increased activity was supported without appreciable diminution of service on an appropriation reduced nearly 20 per cent."

Without the State stipend of $500 the work would have been greatly handicapped. There is a rumor that this money will not be available the coming year. Circulation of French books was nearly one-fifth of the total circulation. Many new borrowers and non-residents became card-holders during the year. Lewiston residents are generous to their library for the 1934 volumes added last year, 961 were by gift.

Miss Lysia Abbott, head of the school department of the Portland Public Library, writes in the New England School Library Association

News Letter of the enjoyment she gets out of her radio talks. Her most thrilling response was a telegram from Henrik Van Loon, who listened in to her talk on his new "Geography" while staying at Waterville. The Portland librarian did a series of talks on Newberry prize authors and their books, taking one author each week. She also did a series on books with Maine as a background, books about Maine and books about New England. At present she is taking her listeners on a trip around the world via books, visiting a different country each week. Miss Abbott likewise reports that she has read the manuscript of Rachel Field's "When Kitty Came to Portland," announced for May this year, and found it delightful.

There are those who might profit by the Miami tragedy. Mr. Roosevelt's life was saved because he made a short speech and sat down.—Washington Post.
